

Teacher Created Materials Goes Pink For Breast Cancer.

Teacher Created Materials will donate 10% of October's revenue from its Teacher Created Materials Today website to help fund breast cancer research.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Calif. – Teacher Created Materials, a leading PK-12 educational publisher located in Huntington Beach, Calif., will go the extra mile to increase breast cancer awareness by donating a percentage of its revenue during the month of October.

For more than 16 years, Teacher Created Materials has participated in events that raise funds for breast cancer research. This year, they will donate to The Hoag Foundation in Newport Beach, Calif.

By donating to Hoag “we hope to help fund efforts towards breast cancer education, research, awareness, and prevention,” says Corinne Burton, President of Teacher Created Materials.

Teacher Created Materials' Staff Shares In the Effort.

Teacher Created Materials has rallied its employees to also get involved. Employees will share their support and wear pink on October 21st. The company will make a charitable contribution per employee sporting pink. They will also be matching the personal donations of their employees to generate even more support for The Hoag Foundation.

“With breast cancer impacting the lives of so many women, educators, and their families, our company wants to support finding a cure,” says Deanne Mendoza, Executive Vice President of Teacher Created Materials.
